THINGS TO KNOW

MATT BURKE, SPORTS EDITOR

Will David Price spout off again this season? You bet. Will it matter if he's pitching well and the Sox still have the best record in baseball, like they do right now? Not at all. Boston remains a simple sports town to figure out. Win and you'll be treated like royalty. Lose, and you'll hear about it. Maybe, just maybe — the Red Sox' filthy rich pitcher has figured it out. STARBUCKS EXECUTIVE SCHULTZ TO STEP DOWN

I Starbucks Corp. Executive Chairman Howard Schultz is stepping away from hands-on management at the global coffee chain, effective June 26, fuelling speculation that the outspoken, liberal-leaning executive will make a U.S. presidential bid. Schultz, 64, over roughly four decades has built Starbucks into one of the world's most powerful global brands. Under his leadership, the Seattle-based coffeeshop chain went from 11 cafes to over 28,000 in 77 countries. He became Starbucks' executive chairman last year, handing the chief executive job to Kevin Johnson at a time when growth in Starbucks' dominant U.S. market was showing signs of cooling. That cooling trend has not abated and some analysts and investors have begun pressing the company to temper new store openings in the United States, where it already has more than 14,000 locations. Some investors interpreted Monday's news as a sign that Schultz was finally making an expected move into politics.

TRUMP PULLS INVITATION TO NFL CHAMPION EAGLES

2 President Donald Trump said on Monday the Super Bowl champion Philadelphia Eagles would not visit the White House on Tuesday as planned after the NFL team disagreed with Trump's call for players to stand for the national anthem. Trump said in a statement that the Eagles, who defeated the New England Patriots in the Super Bowl in February, wanted to send a smaller delegation but that he declined. "They disagree with their president because he insists that they proudly stand for the national anthem, hand on heart, in honor of the great men and women of our military and the people of our country," Trump said. Last season, some National Football League players took a knee during the anthem to protest police shootings of unarmed black men, sparking a controversy. Trump denounced the players as unpatriotic and repeatedly demanded an end to such protests. Under a policy unveiled last month by NFL Commissioner Roger Goodell and welcomed by Trump, teams will be fined if players on the field fail to stand during "The Star-Spangled Banner."

IMMIGRANT TEEN ABORTION RULING TOSSED

4 The U.S. Supreme Court on Monday threw out a lower court ruling that let a pregnant illegal immigrant minor held in federal immigration custody obtain an abortion last year at age 17 over the objections of President Donald Trump's administration. The justices provided a legal victory to Trump's administration even though the teenager already has had the abortion because it eliminated a precedent at the federal appeals court level that could have applied in similar circumstances in which other detained minors sought abortions. In the unsigned opinion with no dissents, the justices threw out the lower court decision on the grounds that the dispute became moot once the teenager had the abortion. The girl, whose name and nationality were not disclosed and was called "Jane Doe" in legal papers, had an abortion on Oct. 25 in Texas, the day after a U.S. appeals court ruled against the Trump administration's objections. The case involves the intersection of two divisive social issues on which Trump has taken a hard line: abortion and immigration.

NFL: BRADY, GRONK WILL ATTEND CAMP

5 Quarterback Tom Brady and tight end Rob Gronkowski are ready for some football, reporting to Gillette Stadium on Monday ahead of a mandatory three-day minicamp with the New England Patriots. The All-Pro pass-and-catch combination missed the voluntary portion of the offseason workout schedule in New England. Brady was spotted around the world — last week, he was in Monaco for Formula 1 — and Gronkowski is reportedly angling for a new contract. Both players touched down in Foxboro, on Monday. According to ESPN, they participated in the Patriots' "fantasy camp" with fans. New England's three-day mandatory minicamp runs Tuesday-Thursday this week. Head coach Bill Belichick did not comment on either player's absence. Backup quarterback Brian Hoyer took all of the first-team reps in practice with the Patriots. He said Brady's absence was not a distraction "in any way at all." Gronkowski, who turned 29 last month, said Sunday after a fundraiser that he would attend this week's workouts. "I'll be full go. I'm looking forward to it. Can't wait to get back to work. I'm excited," Gronkowski said.

MBTA approves early morning, late-night bus service pilot

An MBTA pilot program will test out early morning and late-night bus service for parts of Boston and other cities including Chelsea, Malden and Revere.

Early-morning bus trips and more frequent late night trips are scheduled to begin in September under a $1.2 million pilot proposal that the MBTA Control Board approved on Monday.

The new service would primarily serve cities north of Boston, including Chelsea, Malden and Revere, and neighborhoods in the southern part of the city, including Dorchester and Mattapan, as well as East Boston.

The expanded service could transport people in the hospitality and medical fields, said MBTA General Manager Luis Ramirez. He said, "We really want to give them an option."

The fare price would be unchanged for the pilot.

Boston Chief of Streets Chris Osgood praised the proposal, which he said would add service to the areas demanding it.

"This builds on some of the fantastic efforts by this body," Osgood told the Fiscal and Management Control Board on Monday.

The bus networks would "not quite" run 24 hours per day under the proposal, but it "starts to get close to that," Ramirez told reporters.

The MBTA previously solicited bids for a private vendor to run a bus service outside of the usual operating hours but received no responses.

In 2016, the MBTA cited low usage rates in deciding to save $9 million by cutting late-night weekend service. That effort used subways and certain bus routes to serve riders after the usual close of service.

The program could be tweaked and enhanced through a second phase, which has a roughly $660,000 budget.

"There were times when the T was a little discouraged about whether there was a version of late night that would meet the various constraints that were being put on it. I think this is a great idea," said Transportation Secretary Stephanie Pollack, who called the plan a "smart" game plan.

The project will entail hiring six more bus drivers and in total the pilot will add about 282 new bus trips per week, according to Laurel Paget-Seekins, director of fare policy and analytics. The program could be tweaked and enhanced through a second phase, which has a roughly $660,000 budget.

The September pilot would add service in three main areas. New overnight trips will be added along the Silver Line, and portions of other bus routes — SL1, SL4, 15, 24, 104, 108, 109, 117 and 442 — in the 2 a.m. time-frame. There will be one later trip added on certain days to several bus routes — 34E, 104, 109, 111, 116 and 442. Finally the T will improve the frequency of buses in the 10 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. time frame for other certain routes - 34E, 66, 104, 109, 111, 116, 117 and 442.

For the pilot, the T sought to extend service where it is already needed by workers on early morning or late night shifts.

"It's really being driven by where we've seen demand on our existing late night trips, and also by the board's recognition that we really wanted to focus service on serving the needs of low-income workers," said Paget-Seekins. She said, "There's definitely room — since we have a second phase and we'll potentially continue this — for other areas to see additional service as well."

Route 111, which carries people between Revere and Haymarket, is one of the routes targeted that already has high late-night ridership. The median ridership on the 11:40 p.m. bus is nearly 50 people, according to the T.

The budget calls for $800,000 to be spent on operations, $250,000 to provide The Ride paratransit service along with the new bus service, $100,000 for T police and $50,000 for marketing.

Supreme Court backs Christian baker who rebuffed gay couple

The U.S. Supreme Court on Monday handed a victory on narrow grounds to a Colorado baker who refused based on his Christian beliefs to make a wedding cake for a gay couple, stopping short of setting a major precedent allowing people to claim religious exemptions from anti-discrimination laws.

The justices, in a 7-2 decision, said the Colorado Civil Rights Commission showed an impermissible hostility toward religion when it found that baker Jack Phillips violated the state's anti-discrimination law by rebuffing gay couple David Mullins and Charlie Craig in 2012. The state law bars businesses from refusing service based on race, sex, marital status or sexual orientation.

The court concluded that the commission violated Phillips' religious rights under the U.S. Constitution's First Amendment.

But the justices did not issue a definitive ruling on the circumstances under which people can seek exemptions from anti-discrimination laws based on religion. The decision also did not address important claims raised in the case including whether baking a cake is a kind of expressive act protected by the Constitution's free speech guarantee.

Two of the court's four liberals, Stephen Breyer and Elena Kagan, joined the five conservative justices in the ruling authored by Justice Anthony Kennedy, who also wrote the landmark 2015 decision legalizing gay marriage nationwide.

The baker case be-

"The First Amendment prohibits governments from discriminating against citizens on the basis of religious beliefs."

Attorney General Jeff Sessions came a cultural flashpoint in the United States, underscoring the tensions between gay rights proponents and conservative Christians.

Both sides claimed a measure of victory. The couple's supporters noted that the ruling embraced the importance of gay rights and made it clear that businesses open to the public must serve everyone. The baker's lawyers said the ruling emphasized that the government must respect religious beliefs.

"Our society has come to the recognition that gay persons and gay couples cannot be treated as social outcasts or as inferior in dignity and worth," Kennedy wrote.

But Kennedy said the state commission's hostility toward religion "was inconsistent with the First Amendment's guarantee that our laws be applied in a manner that is neutral toward religion."

In one exchange at a 2014 hearing before the commission cited by Kennedy, former commissioner Diann Rice said that "freedom of religion, and religion, has been used to justify all kinds of discrimination throughout history, whether it be slavery, whether it be the Holocaust."

Kennedy said the commission ruled the opposite way in three cases brought against bakers in which the business owners refused to bake cakes containing messages that demeaned gay people or same-sex marriage.

President Donald Trump's administration, which intervened in the case in support of Phillips, welcomed the ruling. "The First Amendment prohibits governments from discriminating against citizens on the basis of religious beliefs," Attorney General Jeff Sessions said in a statement.

The Massachusetts National Guard will help enforce President Donald Trump's immigration efforts at the border. WIKIMEDIA COMMONS

Mass. sending chopper, soldiers to southwest border to support Trump's immigration effort

The Massachusetts National Guard is sending over personnel to support the president's mission to end illegal border crossing.

The Massachusetts National Guard will be sending a helicopter and a two-person flight crew to the southwestern border later this month to support President Donald Trump's mission to curb illegal border crossings and drug trafficking by leaning on states for support, according to officials.

The crew is expected to deploy by the end of the month, and will be working with the Arizona National Guard and the New Mexico National Guard, in coordination with U.S. Customs and Border Protection, to provide air reconnaissance and track illegal activity along the border with Mexico.

Maj. Gen. Gary Keefe, the adjutant general of the Massachusetts National Guard, said that the decision to support the border mission came after a request was made by the Pentagon. The National Guard will be sending one UH-72 Lakota helicopter and two military analysts to pilot the aircraft.

"We have a proud his-

"Our soldiers are prepared for the task and proud to participate in this mission to provide air support, along with detection and monitoring capabilities for border security operations to strengthen homeland security."

Maj. Gen. Gary Keefe, adjutant general of the Massachusetts National Guard tory of answering the call when our country needs us," Keefe said in a statement to the News Service. "Our soldiers are prepared for the task and proud to participate in this mission to provide air support, along with detection and monitoring capabilities for border security operations to strengthen homeland security."

Trump in April ordered the Pentagon and Department of Homeland Security to deploy National Guard troops to the southern border to assist federal border agents, indicating at the time that he would like to see 2,000 to 4,000 National Guard troops called up.

Some states, notably California, have fought with the Pentagon over whether to comply with requests and over what duties National Guard troops will perform once activated along the border.

The participation in Trump's border security mission comes at a politically sensitive time for Gov. Charlie Baker, who is heavily favored to win a second term, but has cultivated his support, in part, by distancing himself from a White House that is as unpopular as he is popular in Massachusetts. Immigration, in particular, has been a hot-button issue on Beacon Hill, where the Senate voted to add language to its annual budget bill that would restrict cooperation between local police and federal immigration officers.

While Baker has said he would veto any measure that proposes to make Massachusetts a "sanctuary state," he has also said the local communities should be able to decide how their police interact with Immigration and Customs Enforcement.

The guardsmen traveling to the border with the helicopter will perform law enforcement operations, the National Guard said.

The Baker administration downplayed the cooperation with the Trump administration's border security efforts, noting that the request for resources and personnel was relatively small and that Massachusetts has assisted with border operations for both Democrat and Republican presidents. Massachusetts National Guardsmen were activated to support Operation Jump Start under President George W. Bush from 2006 to 2008 and Operation Phalanx under President Barack Obama.

According to officials, participating border states like Arizona and New Mexico submit a request through what is known as the Joint Information Exchange Environment to the National Guard Coordination Center at National Guard Bureau. States like Massachusetts then determine if they have the ability to fulfill the mission request and can deploy if they meet the requirements.

If you love "Westworld," then you should tune in to "Humans."

'Humans' offers 'Westworld' fans a simpler, enjoyable alternative

The sci-fi series returns Tuesday night.

ANDREW HUSBAND
letters@metro.us

Aside from viral videos depicting Boston Dynamics' latest robotics innovations, our current fascination with artificial intelligence is largely thanks to HBO's provocative "Westworld."

This is totally understandable, as the slick dystopian series based on Michael Crichton's 1973 film has become one of TV's most-talked-about science fiction dramas in recent memory. Meanwhile, AMC and Channel 4's "Humans" receives far less attention from critics and audiences alike, but that doesn't mean it isn't as good, especially now that Season 3 is about to debut.

Adapted from the Swedish show "Real Humans" by Sam Vincent and Jonathan Brackley, "Humans" tackles the possible ramifications of a near future in which androids called "synths" are publicly available for purchase and use. Instead of starting with a bang, as "Westworld" would do a year later, "Humans" opted for a far more simpler and intimate route.

Season 1 centers around the Hawkins family and their purchasing Anita (Gemma Chan). Aside from the turmoil Anita's arrival causes between married couple Laura (Katherine Parkinson) and Joe (Tom Goodman-Hill), the "new" synth also turns out to be a much older, and far more special, android. That's because Dr. David Elster (Stephen Boxer) created her away from the prying eyes of his former partners and gave her consciousness.

The remainder of the first season explores the additional sentient synths Elster created, their struggles to provide consciousness to other subservient androids and Elster's ex-partners' desire to stop them. Season 2, meanwhile, pushes the synths' efforts to bestow consciousness on all other robots to the extreme. The result? "Day Zero," when a "consciousness code" is uploaded to synths across the globe, resulting in the deaths of thousands.

Season 3 jumps ahead one year after the code's uploading to see where society has progressed. Things don't seem too great, as sentient synths are now being segregated into camps by vengeful, fearful humans. Some, like human Laura Hawkins and Elster synth Max (Ivanhoe Jeremias) and the rescued synth Flash (Ritu Arya), campaign for robots rights. Others, like a group of synth terrorists, aren't interested in peaceful solutions. They even resort to violence against their own to prove as much.

If Season 3 sounds intriguing, but you haven't already watched the first two seasons, both are available to stream for Amazon Prime viewers. Otherwise, if the series doesn't sound immediately appealing, but you're on the lookout for something to replace "Westworld" in a few weeks, then you may want to give "Humans" a shot.

"Humans" Season 3 debuts tonight at 10 p.m. on AMC.

THE STAR

MOHAMED SALAH

We've seen stars representing smaller countries in past World Cups, whether it was Didier Drogba with the Ivory Coast or Edin Dzeko with Bosnia and Herzegovina, to name a couple. But there is no other player in the world right now playing better than Egypt's Mohamed Salah, who is coming off a monumental season with Liverpool in the Premier League, which included a trip to the Champions League Final. He is the sole reason as to why Egypt qualified for its first World Cup Finals in 28 years and will be reason why they'll have any sort of success in Russia. All eyes will be on that dislocated shoulder picked up in the Champions League Final against Real Madrid.

IGOR AKINFEEV

This will be the first time that the World Cup is being held in Russia and the hosts don't have an overly difficult group. It could mean that the home fans could see a possible run to the knockout stages despite its meager world ranking. History suggests they'll be in trouble though considering Russia has bowed out at the group stage in each of its last four World Cup appearances.

THE STAR

NAWAF AL ABED

The lowest-ranked team of Group A doesn't offer much experience on any major international stage. However, they do have some talent playing in some of the world's top leagues outside of Saudi Arabia. While Nawa Al Abed is the engine that will keep the Green Falcons' midfield running, there is talent in the form of Salem Al-Dawsari and Fahad Al-Muwallad, who play in Spain's La Liga for Villarreal and Levante, respectively.

Price — finally — making things right

All will be forgotten if the lefty continues to pitch like this.

matthew.burke@metro.us

Carpal tunnel due to playing video games, screaming at a Red Sox legend on an airplane, nagging injuries, and a $217 million price tag? Water under the bridge.

Since the carpal tunnel issue early last month in which he missed a key start against the rival Yankees and was lambasted for it for a week on Boston sports radio, Price has been lights out.

The Sox have won their last five games in which Price has started, and the veteran lefty hasn't given up more than three earned runs

David Price has been phenomenal over the past month. GETTY IMAGES in each of those games. His "worst" outing based on runs allowed during this stretch came this past Saturday night, and all he did was limit the defending World Series champion Houston Astros to three earned and five hits in 6.0 innings of work. The Sox won, 5-4, after losing the first two games of their monster series against the Astros.

First to 40

The Red Sox are the first team in MLB to reach 40 wins this season as they stand at 41-19. They'll look to get No. 42 tonight at Fenway against the Tigers. The Sox will send Steven Wright to mound, as Wright makes his first start of the 2018 season. Wright has been working out of the bullpen recently and is sporting a 2.25 ERA.

The Astros could very well meet the Sox in the playoffs for the second straight year this coming October, and it would certainly be nice if Boston had something of a 'Stros-stopper in their rotation.

"He shows up every five days, man, and he competes," Red Sox manager Alex Cora said of Price last week after Price sarcastically referred to himself, 'soft.' "Since Day 1, I saw the bullpen sessions and what he does to prepare every day. And if that's soft, give me five soft guys every day. Because he can pitch."

Price was one of the few Red Sox players who actually showed up in the ALDS last fall against Houston. In two outings out of the bullpen — 6.2 innings altogether — Price did not allow a run.

The Red Sox currently have the best record in all of baseball with a sparkling mark of 41-19. They currently have the best odds of winning it all this October.

If Price continues to throw like this, those odds will increase — and all the non-baseball crap will wash away.

Aries Watch out for someone trying to lead you in the wrong direction. Take better care of your health and rely on your intelligence and resourcefulness to help you get ahead.

Taurus Take control and bring about the changes that will make you feel good about yourself and the direction you are headed. Don't let someone's boldness intimidate you.

Gemini Stay focused on what you are trying to achieve. Actions and intelligence will show you mean business and that you are willing to see matters through to the end.

Cancer Take a unique approach to your responsibilities if you want to find new ways to use your skills and attributes. Personal improvements and educational pursuits are favored.

Leo Don't take a risk or get involved in a dubious joint venture. Persuasive tactics will be used to try and convince you of the merits of a plan that lacks substance.

Virgo Examine what's being offered or how something is handled before you put your reputation on the line. Play it safe and only take part in endeavors helmed by trustworthy people.

Libra Speak up and let others know what's on your mind. Personal problems will develop if someone puts pressure on you to do something you don't want to do.

Scorpio Stick close to home and the people you trust. You will accomplish the most if you are diligent and embrace change using uncommon methods.

Sagittarius Emotional manipulation will disrupt your day. Whether it's you or someone else using persuasive tactics, the outcome will not be satisfactory. It's best to be honest and move on.

Capricorn Consider people and ideas from your past to help you move forward. Attending a reunion will bring back memories that will help you make decisions. An emotional relationship will take a unique turn.

Aquarius Make changes for the right reason. Don't act out of spite or because someone else prompts you to. Focus on home, family and gaining greater stability.

Pisces Be courageous and try something new. A personal change will open a window of opportunity. Love, romance and physical improvement are highlighted. Do your own fact-finding. EUGENIA LAST
